

City Manager Presents 2009 Budget Proposal to Council

by Thomas X. White

Leading off the agenda for the Greenbelt City Council meeting of March 24, City Manager Michael McLaughlin presented his proposed budget for city operations for the coming Fiscal Year 2009 (FY09) that begins on July 1, 2008. For Greenbelt the budget process is almost a never-ending and arduous cycle for the city manager and city department heads.

Although the city charter requires the manager to present the budget to council at its last meeting in March of each year, preparation of the budget for a given year actually begins much sooner, often as early as the preceding fall.

The March presentation marks the beginning of a public review period for the manager’s budget that will consist of at least 10 council worksessions and two public hearings and culminate with council’s adoption of the final FY09 city budget with such amendments as it sees fit, at either the last council meeting in May or the first meeting in June.

In a prepared presentation, McLaughlin began with comments relating to accomplishments during the current fiscal year 2008. He noted completion of the project to refurbish windows in the historic sections of the Greenbelt Community Center, the ongoing expansion and renovation of the city’s Public Works facility, the very successful Maryland Municipal League fall conference hosted by the city and the selection of Greenbelt as one of 31 Charter Playful City communities in the United States.

McLaughlin also reported that the current year budget is expected to end almost $600,000 in the black, due mainly to higher than anticipated property tax revenue, an unexpected $250,000 payment for new street permits for the Greenbelt Station development, not having to fill two police officer positions and over $90,000 savings in insurance costs. With the expected improved financial results for Fiscal Year 2008, the city manager proposes a significant contribution to rebuild the city fund balance, bringing it to approximately 9.1 percent of city expenditures.

FY09 Proposal

For FY09 he is proposing $24,999,100 in revenues and $24,873,800 in expenditures, which amounts to $1.36 million over FY08 (5.8 percent) figures. Most of this increase relies on a 9.3 percent expected increase in property tax revenues ($1.22 million).

McLaughlin proposed that there be no increase for FY09 in the city property tax rate. He also remarked that city property owners should also expect an 8/10th of a cent reduction in their county tax rate due to the property tax differential program for municipalities.

Looking ahead, McLaughlin indicated that in Fiscal Year 2010 there will likely be another 9 percent increase in assessment growth for the city, marking about six years in a row of 9 percent increases in property valuations. However, for Fiscal Year 2011 city property will be subject to a new property tax assessment cycle that could reflect the current turmoil in the real estate and credit markets.

Harking back to the early 2000 experience, the city manager seemed to cling somewhat tenu-

Greenbelt Expresses Shock At Plans for Soccer Stadium

by Elaine Skolnik

When the Greenbelt City Council learned from the January 23 edition of the Washington Post that Prince George’s County officials were considering locating a soccer stadium in the area of the Greenbelt Metro Station, council lost no time in sending a letter to County Executive Jack Johnson reflecting their shock and reservations over such a possibility.

In the letter Mayor Judith Davis expressed council’s dismay over not having been invited to meetings where the potential stadium was discussed. She noted that these discussions were apparently substantive enough that the county requested the Maryland Stadium Authority (MSA) to undertake a $75,000 feasibility study.

Had Greenbelt been in on the discussions, the county would have learned that plans for the development of the Greenbelt Metro area, which is included in Greenbelt’s corporate limits, have been actively worked on for more than a decade. She wrote, “The vision has been for a transit-oriented mixed use development reflective of Smart Growth.”

The mayor went on, “The city has a development agreement governing how the property can be developed and has had numerous meetings over the years dealing with the property (north core) including an update from Petrie Ross on their plans less than a year ago. Further, the city has successfully filed suit related to the plans review process for this property and worked with [the county executive’s] staff toward

by Ruth Kastner

About 65 Greenbelt residents attended a March 27 informational meeting at the Springhill Lake Elementary School. SHL residents Melissa Hines-Rodriguez and Kimberly Paz, organizers of the event, invited representatives of city government to talk with residents about their concerns and to provide information on the services available to SHL residents.

Linda Sherwood, principal of SHL Elementary School, welcomed the crowd and Hines-Rodriguez noted that the Greenbelt Giant Food store had donated refreshments. City Councilmembers Judith Davis, Edward Putens and Rodney Roberts were also present.

Safety Concerns

In a frank exchange, a number of residents expressed their disappointment over various aspects of the SHL facilities and services, while others cited good experiences both with the SHL management and with city staff. Detective Mike Lanier of the Greenbelt Police Department noted that street robberies were down by about 20 percent this year but emphasized that ongoing help was needed from the community in reporting thefts for the city to be able to investigate these crimes properly. He emphasized that reports can be done anonymously and are treated as confidential.

At this point, one resident expressed concern that her initial theft report had been suspended a few weeks later and that she was subsequently robbed again. Lanier replied that a report may be

by Thomas X. White

The main event at the Greenbelt City Council meeting on March 24 was the annual presentation by the city manager of his proposed Fiscal Year 2009 budget. Highlights of the budget presentation are covered elsewhere in this issue. Following the budget presentation only a few other items were addressed by council, and all in some fashion related to the environment and how city policy in this area does or does not measure up.

Cool Capital Challenge

The first item of business was council consideration of a city resolution endorsing and participating in the Cool Capital Challenge (CCC), a voluntary grassroots campaign designed to obtain commitments for reducing one billion pounds of carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions in the Washington metropolitan region by April 2008. CCC was initiated in early 2007 by volunteers from business, institutions, government agencies, congregations and community and environmental organizations. It is coordinated out of the offices of Washington Parks and People in the Josephine Butler Parks Center.

Instead of cash, the currency for contributions to the CCC is greenhouse gas reductions. Based on that organization’s website, <http://www.coolcapitalchallenge.org>, the effort has obtained over 270 million pounds of greenhouse gas reduction pledges during the first six months following its launch.

Greenbelt’s involvement stems from its membership in the Washington Council of Governments (COG), which is supporting the CCC through its Climate Change Initiative. In addition to supporting CCC, the COG program attempts to integrate ongoing regional and COG member local government activities contributing to greenhouse gas reduction, sharing of best practices, development of information and measurement tools and development of an outreach and education campaign for governments, businesses and citizens.

In considering the resolution for second reading and approval, staff noted that although a pledge of a specific amount of CO2 reduction is being sought, a specific amount has not yet been calculated. However, staff believes that the city should be able to calculate a sizable contribution by taking into account the “green” aspects of the Public Works facility reconstruction/renovation; proposed installation of energy efficient heating/cooling equipment at the Aquatic and Fitness Center, the city’s recycling programs, purchase of more energy efficient vehicles and other measures that have been or will be undertaken by the city.

Mayor Judith Davis noted the difficulty in making such measurements and in establishing a meaningful baseline upon which any “contributions” could be based. She also suggested that the city staff investigate if the city’s trademark green space and other city efforts to preserve green space could be factored into the greenhouse gas reduction calculations.

William Orleans challenged council and the mayor regarding their “delay” in implementing the recommendations made last year by the city’s Recycling and Environmental Advisory Committee. Davis indicated that the program recommended by the committee is being considered but that it has required measurements and calculations that would be costly for the city to accomplish.

“The city should not be in-

Turn Out Lights

March 29 to April 4 is National Dark-Sky Week, dedicated to the promotion of better outdoor lighting practices.

To many people, lights mean safety and the more, the better. However, poorly designed, thoughtlessly installed outdoor lighting fixtures not only do not promote safety, they pose a danger to wildlife, are detrimental to human health and waste enormous amounts of energy (and money). We've all seen those pictures from space of the earth at night, with the continents neatly outlined with light, but how many of us realize that almost all of that light is wasted?

Many of us are saving energy by installing efficient light bulbs in our homes; but how many of us are encouraging our city and the businesses we patronize to reduce costs by using efficient, well-designed outdoor lighting which puts the light on the ground where it's needed? As an amateur astronomer I mourn the loss of the night sky; as an older person I squint because of the glare that assaults my eyes; and as a taxpayer and citizen I resent the waste of resources represented by current lighting practices.

Working together, we can have a community which is more pleasant and safer at lower cost to all of us. Now would be a good time to start. More information can be obtained from the International Dark-Sky Association (<http://www.darksky.org/mc/page.do>).

Welcome Minority Council Candidates

Many Greenbelt residents would welcome the opportunity to vote for a city council that reflects Greenbelt's racial diversity. But I see two obstacles: (1) the difficulty of unseating an incumbent and (2) the lack of diverse candidates.

In 1938 Greenbelt's city council had five members to govern a city of 610 families. Maybe it's about time we added a couple of seats to serve our 9,000+ housing units. Then in 2009 it wouldn't be necessary to beat an incumbent to get elected. And as for minority candidates, perhaps the Prince George's County Branch of the NAACP can energize their Greenbelt membership to recruit strong candidates and raise funds for their campaigns.

Of course, getting accomplished candidates to spend hundreds of hours a year in meetings with nominal compensation is quite a challenge!

All the more reason we should not switch to a 5-district system that would automatically jettison at least two of our current dedicated and experienced councilmembers. I see voting districts as divisive and unnecessary. And it is difficult to draw boundaries fairly. For example, I feel the eastern part of the ACLU-proposed District 2 has an unfair advantage.

I also like cumulative voting, because I could enthusiastically cast all my votes. (Last year, the average number of votes cast per voter was only 4.1 out of 5 votes.) With cumulative voting, impassioned people would feel their candidate stood a better chance.

But even with cumulative voting, I doubt that new candidates will be elected unless there are open seats on the council.

For those who enjoy lively discussion on this topic, the "Greenbelters" yahoogroups email list has been highly entertaining and informative. And these emails are saved in a searchable archive.²

Simpler Solution

We have seen the proposal to divide the city into five equal districts and allow people to vote for council candidates only from their own district, even when they believe other candidates are better qualified. I propose a simpler solution that is cheaper, easier to do and more fair. The method makes just one change to our present system of choosing five at-large candidates where each voter has up to five votes: Allow each voter to cast all five of his or her at-large votes for one candidate (or 3 for one and 2 for another or 1 for each of five different candidates, or whatever the voter chooses).

With this method, if at least 17 percent of voters really want one particular candidate to win, they need only use all five of their votes for that candidate. That mathematically guarantees their candidate will be one of the five elected. [Six candidates cannot each receive 17 percent of the votes cast since 6 times 17 percent is 102 percent.]

The advantage of this method is that it does not force voters to band together only by district. If the voters in one election district really want a particular candidate from their district to win, that candidate is guaranteed to win (districts having around 20 percent of voters). Or if 17 percent of the voters want to elect a person over 65 to represent the interests of the elderly, they can guarantee the election of that person. If a particular minority group has 34 percent of the voters, they can guarantee that two of the five winners are from their minority group. Or if 34 percent of the voters feel that electing a woman is the prime consideration, they can guarantee that two of the five winners are women.

In short, this voting method gives council representation to any group of at least 17 percent of Greenbelt voters if they choose to vote solely on the basis of race, gender, age or education or whatever criterion they feel is most important. Giving voters the freedom to choose on the basis of district is not more important than giving them the freedom not to. This voting method gives voters both freedoms.

Urges Cumulative Voting Solution

I respectfully suggest that Greenbelt adopt cumulative voting for our city council elections.

For those who don't know, this simply means that each voter gets some number of votes (say five) which you may cast however you please. In particular, if you want to cast all five votes for the same candidate, you may do so.

This system has several advantages:

1. It is simple, easy to understand and administer.
2. A candidate with strong minority support has a significant chance of being elected.
3. A candidate with no significant support has little chance of being elected (unlike district plans).
4. Each councilmember is accountable to the entire city (unlike district plans).
5. Legal precedent establishes this system as being non-racist (unlike a fully at-large system or an at-large system with residency requirements).

Warden's Day Off

As far as wildlife goes, things have been tame since a coyote appeared in my yard last November. Sunday afternoon changed that and left me wishing our police department would assume animal warden duties when urgent situations arise that affect quality of life when the warden is off-duty.

About 1 p.m. Sunday there were eight vultures alternately circling and sitting in trees in my backyard and the city property adjacent to it – with more flying in from the west. Something somewhere nearby had died. I found an opossum lying in the creek on city property behind my shed.

These were "black" vultures with small gray heads and short tails, not "turkey" vultures with small red heads and longer tails. They had 3 to 4 foot wingspans and rather quietly but awkwardly fluttered as they moved from tree to tree. It was unsettling to see their hunched-over silhouettes, each about two feet tall and a foot wide, with tiny heads sunken into their chests, perched high up on oak tree branches staring down with their beady eyes waiting for me to leave.

Well, I wanted them to leave. Removing the torn open opossum would solve my problem. Not so simple, though, when our animal warden is off duty. The police referred me to our city warden or the county animal shelter. Our city warden's recording referred me (back) to our police or the county. The county shelter had "a backlog" but would take a message and call our city warden the next day, Monday.

I left home at 1:30 p.m. Sun-

Explorations Presents Sinatra on April 4
On Friday, April 4 Explorations Unlimited will host a presentation by Stephen Kramer on the subject of Frank Sinatra in the 1940s that was originally scheduled for the cancelled February 22 meeting. Kramer has spent 35 years working as an electronic engineer and has collected jazz and big band recordings and videos since his childhood. He is the co-author of “Gene Krupa and his Orchestra,” published by Jazz Discographies Unlimited in 1973, and has participated in the production of compact discs by Dick Haymes and Buddy Clark, both prominent vocalists of the 1940s.
Most recently, he has conducted classes on American Popular Song through the University of Maryland’s Legacy College and at Prince George’s Community College SAGE program. He has also supplied music for the stage production of Clare Boothe Luce’s “The Women,” presented at the Greenbelt Arts Center.
Kramer’s presentation will cover Sinatra’s formative years beginning as a vocalist for the Harry James Orchestra in 1939, continue through his period as the featured male singer with the Tommy Dorsey band between 1940 and 1942 and end with his emergence as a major recording and film star following the conclusion of World War II. Recordings, radio broadcasts and film clips will be used to illustrate his contribution to the development of American Popular Song as an art form.
Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. This presentation will be held in the Senior Classroom, Room 114. Everyone is welcome to attend and questions are encouraged. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

Who are the Divine Messengers that Bahá'u'lláh spoke about? (Part 2)

Bahá'u'llah proclaimed that God, our loving Creator, sends Divine Messengers with teachings that enable humanity to know and to worship God. These great Messengers have appeared throughout history at intervals of about 500 to 1,000 years and brought human civilization to ever higher levels of spiritual and material advancement. Bahá'u'llah is the latest in this long line of Divine Messengers, which has included Abraham, Moses, Jesus, Muhammad, Krishna, Buddha, Zoroaster and the Báb.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor."
– The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

day. Upon my return at 3:30 there were no more vultures and only skeleton and skin from the opossum. Our warden picked up the remains Monday morning.

THANKS!

I want to thank New Deal Café Board President Peter May and Boardmember Bill Wilkerson for making a dream come true for Greenbelt – getting Chef Karim and Maria to take over the New Deal Café's restaurant. They will bring a professional kitchen, staff and new menu to the Café, as well as many new friends.

The interim all-volunteer operation of recent months will be a thing of the past. We will volunteer when asked to help the new restaurant operators succeed. For example, I've agreed to continue ordering the beer, wine, sodas, teas and other drinks. But our main volunteering soon will be maintaining the co-op and its heart – the music and arts aspects of Greenbelt's living room – while ensuring we offer all the help we can to make sure the New Deal Café's restaurant succeeds beyond our wildest dreams.

After all, we can't ignore our bodies while nourishing our minds and souls. Thanks.

ously to his oft-noted warning to council that the city could again be faced with a “structural deficit” problem if or when the city experiences expenditure increases that exceed revenue growth. Accentuating this point is the steady increase in the city’s reliance on the property tax to fund its programs and operations.

McLaughlin said that in Fiscal Year 2003 property taxes represented 43 percent of city revenue. In the FY09 proposed budget, property tax revenues are 58 percent of total revenues. Recognizing that Greenbelt citizens rate the services, programs and facilities offered by the city as either good or excellent, the city manager reminded council that there is a cost to support this expected quality of life, and he posed the question, “Should the city’s level of program service be sustained in the future?”

- Summary
FY09 Budget Highlights – Revenues:
- No new staff positions
 - Two police officer positions for Greenbelt West development deferred and funds will be used to upgrade the city Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) system
 - Corporate property taxes down $200,000; income taxes up 2 percent
 - State highway user/gas tax down from FY07
 - Admissions & amusement tax up $35,000; hotel/motel tax flat
 - Increase of $4.00/quarter proposed for city waste collection
 - Five percent increase in pool pass fees; daily fees up 25 cents
 - Red light camera expenses exceeding revenues in FY07 and 08
 - Windfall savings of $220,000 from city contributions to the Law Enforcement Officers Pension System (LEOPS)
 - Savings of $100,000+ in health insurance and city self-insured prescription drug program
 - Development at Greenbelt

- Station slowed; AIMCO Springhill Lake reconsidering its redevelopment proposal
- FY 2009 Budget Highlights – Expenditure Issues:
- Increasing costs for energy and fuel; costs are three times as much as six years ago.
 - Need for additional capital financing: Springhill Lake Recreation Center, Greenbelt Lake dredging and water quality improvements, Public Safety communications infrastructure
 - Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) program case manager to be funded for full year
 - Capital Projects Manager to be funded for full year
 - Six percent increase for funding Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA) with Greenbelt Fraternal Order of Police (FOP)
 - City employee pay adjustment of 3 percent plus funding for updated classification and compensation study

Meetings

Mc Laughlin advised council that the Greenbelt FOP has indicated that with the institution of the Collective Bargaining Agreement last year, there would be no need to schedule the budget worksession traditionally held with it. He indicated he would be proposing to council that worksession be used as a separate session for council review of the Capital Projects budget.

If council agrees, that change would allow approval of the Capital Budget along with the rest of the budget, instead of its being deferred, as in prior years, until after the budget approval.

In closing, McLaughlin heaped praise on city staff members who provided key support for development of the budget. In addition to department heads, he singled out contributions from Assistant City Manager David Moran, City Treasurer Jeff Williams, Executive Associate Anne Marie Belton and Public Information and Communications Coordinator Beverly Palau.

terested in signing a pledge if it was not willing to back it up,” she asserted. She also noted that the CCC program has the added feature of outreach to other organizations in and around the city, which could result in much more possible reduction pledges.

Following discussion council adopted the CCC Resolution.

Bicycle Racks

Next on the somewhat green agenda was council consideration of recommendations by the city’s Advisory Planning Board (APB), Park & Recreation Advisory Board and the Public Safety Advisory Committee on the need for additional bike racks at Roosevelt Center, including areas other than the commercial center. Underlying the advisory board’s recommendations was the premise that supporting and facilitating the use of bicycle riding benefits the city. Evidently the rub is specific placement of bicycle racks to foster such use.

Terri Hruby reported to council on the issue and, based upon input from the city’s boards, she offered a set of staff recommendations on the placement of bike racks in the greater Roosevelt Center area. The recommended sites are at the Co-op store, the centerway underpass, the front of the library, the Community Center entrance off the library parking lot and a second one near the former post office.

Hruby advised council that the APB promoted additional locations, including locating three racks dispersed along the sidewalk/storefronts on Centerway. APB felt that bike racks visible from the various storefronts would allow riders to park bikes within eyesight of their destination. The staff did not recommend such options, however, because of a history associated with such locations actually encouraging bikers to ride within the commercial center.

Hruby also noted that the APB is currently working on a comprehensive bicycle/pedestrian plan for the entire city. She assured council that any new placements would utilize the “inverted U” style of rack.

In response to a question from council, she noted that most city facilities (maybe with the exception of the Public Works facility) have bicycle racks available. Council unanimously approved the staff recommendations with the proviso that specific locations would be coordinated with other affected property owners and that the topic be revisited following reactions to the specified recommendations.

New Carpet

Council also unanimously approved the purchase of replacement carpet in the Municipal Building ($18,106). The purchase is based upon a Fairfax County Public School bid that the city could piggyback on. The contractor, Zinzi Carpet, has already replaced the carpet in the Community Center Multi-purpose room at a cost of $5,345. Council action was necessary because the cost at the Municipal Building exceeded $10,000. In keeping with the evening’s green agenda, the removed carpet from both locations will be recycled.

Next up was another award of purchase for a replacement vehicle for the city’s Code Enforcement office that had been severely damaged in a December storm. The staff-recommended purchase was a Ford Focus sedan that would be part of a State of Maryland bid at a cost of $11,427. A combination of $5,600 from the insurance on the damaged vehicle and savings on other replacement fund purchases will cover the cost of the vehicle in the FY08 budget.

The staff report also included information on a Chevy Malibu hybrid vehicle that would be available for $20,648 on another state bid. The mayor indicated that she was thinking hybrid and Councilmember Rodney Roberts questioned the selection of the Ford Focus over the hybrid.

Assistant Manager David Moran told council that the staff conducted an EPA-based evaluation that allowed a comparison of the environmental impact of the two vehicles. The Ford Focus turned out to be more environmentally friendly (greener) than the hybrid, he said. The Ford Focus won the unanimous approval of council.

State Bill

That would have been it for the green agenda but Davis added an additional item relating to House Bill 1604, which would establish a Maryland Community Parks and Playgrounds Program and authorize for it up to $5 million dollars from the state’s Program Open Space fund. The mayor asked for council support for a motion to direct the city staff to communicate city support for the bill and its companion legislation in the Maryland Senate.

Roberts objected to the proposal, noting that however worthy community parks and playgrounds may be, he has had a longstanding objection to any legislation that siphons off Program Open Space funding for purposes not associated with the direct purchase of green space. With Roberts voting no, this legislation did get a council majority.

Recognitions

On the same night when the city manager presented his proposed FY09 budget to council, he announced that the city has received the Government Finance Officers Association’s Distinguished Budget Presentation Award for its FY08 budget document. This award recognizes that Greenbelt publishes a budget document that satisfies national guidelines as a policy document, an operations guide, a financial plan and a communications device.

McLaughlin noted that Greenbelt has won this award for 19 of the 20 years that the city has submitted its budget document for consideration.

And to end the evening on a green note, it was also announced that once again Greenbelt has been named a “Tree City USA” community.

Elementary School Fair to Be April 12

Saturday, April 12 will be a great day to relax and have fun at the Greenbelt Elementary School PTA's annual Spring Fair.

Kids can do crafts like paper airplanes, playful hats and sand art and play popular games, including the wildly amusing "potty toss," fishing for ducks and digging for treasure in a sand box. Both adults and children can participate in the cakewalk or measure how fast they can throw a baseball with Officer Parker and his radar gun.

A Bike Rodeo will be held from noon to 2 p.m. Bring a bike and helmet or borrow one at the rodeo. The silent auction (cash only) will feature gift certificates from local businesses and other donated items. Kids may also bid on special lunches sponsored by teachers. A one-day Scholastic Book Fair (cash or credit cards) will earn the school hundreds of dollars' worth of books.

Nuclear Radiation Talk At Mishkan Torah

What is nuclear radiation? Where does it come from? How much are we exposed to? How harmful is it? Should we be worried about nuclear radiation?

These and many more questions will be discussed and answered by Steve Mirsky at Mishkan Torah Synagogue on Sunday, April 13 at 10:30 a.m. This free presentation is jointly sponsored by the Social Action Committee and the Men's Club. Mirsky will draw on his 32-plus years of experience in nuclear energy, safety and engineering to present information on nuclear radiation. He will also bring interesting items from his personal collection to demonstrate different principles of nuclear radiation.

For more information call 301-474-4223. Mishkan Torah is located at 10 Ridge Road.

Renovations Impact Kids' Art Exhibit

The date for the reception for the April Children's Art Exhibit at the New Deal Café in Roosevelt Center has been changed due to the Café's temporary closing for renovation work. The new date is Sunday, April 27 from 3 to 5 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend this free event. There will be a singalong with Melissa Sites, Greenbelt singer and music teacher, refreshments and a hands-on art project for children and families – making animal sculptures from fruits and vegetables, led by Greenbelt artist Tom Baker.

Artwork is still being accepted for this show and will be displayed for the last two weeks of April. Any child 12 years old or younger who lives or goes to school in Greenbelt or who has a parent who works in Greenbelt is encouraged to participate. Works must be framed, matted or mounted on cardboard, one entry per child. Those interested in submitting artwork are asked to contact Kristin Stenson at newdealcafeart@yahoo.com or Barbara Simon at simongava@yahoo.com or call 301-474-2192 before April 12.

The New Deal Café art show program is sponsored by the Friends of New Deal Café Arts and is supported by a grant from the Greenbelt Community Foundation.

On Friday, April 11 at Explorations Unlimited the Greenbelt Library staff will provide an orientation on the types of resources available in the library including: databases (i.e., health and wellness/genealogy), large print books and audio and downloadable materials. Other resources include newspapers and magazines, consumer report information and the Homebound Service, a volunteer-operated service, which drops off selected books to residents. Audience members may also use a computer and be guided through the selection of databases. Those who would like to reserve to use the computer should do so no later than Wednesday, April 9 by emailing thines@greenbeltnmd.gov or calling 240-542-2054.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. This presentation will be held at the Greenbelt Library at 1 p.m. on April 11. Everyone is welcome to attend and questions are encouraged. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

City Notes

Animal Control responded to one injured wildlife call, took one injured cat into custody, impounded one pit bull and investigated two animal cruelty complaints.

Public Works staff reported that natural ground springs were discovered while grading the hillside behind Public Works. Crews worked together to install two French drains to direct the water away from the site of the new Public Works building.

The old Public Works building and office trailer have been razed. All material from the two structures was taken to a recycling plant where it was separated into designated bins.

Magic Lantern Is Artful Afternoon Theme

The next Artful Afternoon will be held on Sunday, April 6 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Community Center. "The moon has been stolen!" It's not an April Fool's joke but the theme of "Luna" – a spooky magic lantern show that will be presented by artist Molly Ross and Nana Projects at the Greenbelt Community Center. This free performance will take place at 3 p.m. in the multi-purpose room as part of the Recreation Department's monthly Artful Afternoon.

With shadow puppets and three tricked-out overhead projectors, the "lanterneers" present a unique, visual form of storytelling. Three artists simultaneously fly through crates of elaborate hand-cut paper overlays, using dimmers, cranks and hand movement to create a seamless narrative on screen. Participants in Greenbelt's Creative Kids Camp 2007 were mesmerized by Ross's show "When Night Comes," performed at the Greenbelt Arts Center. Every hand in the house shot up when the artists asked for volunteers to come forward after the performance and help demonstrate how some of their special effects were achieved.

Puppet Workshop

"Luna" will offer a new way for viewers of all ages to participate in creating the magic. In a pre-show workshop, from 1 to 2:30 p.m., Artful Afternoon attendees can make their own shadow puppet monsters which may be used in the 3 p.m. show. This activity is free and all materials are provided.

Based loosely on a Brothers Grimm fairy tale, this piece was developed with the help of a grant from the Jim Henson Foundation. Parents are advised that this show contains silhouette images of burial and skeletons; rest assured, though, there is a happy ending!

Ross' magic lantern shows have delighted audiences of thousands at the culmination of the annual Halloween Lantern Parade in Baltimore's Patterson Park. This event, orchestrated by Nana Projects with local partners, was named Best Parade of 2007 by Baltimore Magazine and heralded by the Baltimore City Paper as one of the top 10 reasons to live in Baltimore. For information about Nana Projects, including classes and internships, visit www.nanaprojects.com.

Artist Reception

Also at this month's Artful Afternoon there will be a reception with artist Tiffany Jordan from 2 to 4 p.m. in conjunction with her new exhibition "Entanglements" at the Community Center Art Gallery. Jordan creates graceful, abstract drawings and prints from the delicate shadows of tangled wire. Visitors can sign up for a free silkscreen monoprint workshop with this artist, which will be held on Friday, April 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. The workshop is open to ages 13 to adult and all materials are provided. Jordan's exhibition continues through April 27.

Ticket Drawing

Be sure to enter for this month's free ticket drawing which will be held at 3 p.m., immediately preceding the performance of "Luna." Community members may enter prior to the Artful Afternoon or by 2:30 p.m. on April 6 at the desk outside of the Community Center Art Gallery. Tickets will be awarded to a performance of the winner's choice at the Greenbelt Arts Center and to each of these shows at the University of Maryland's Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center: Mozart's Cosi Fan Tutte, Hayden's The Creation and the Spanish Harlem Orchestra.

Other Events

Every month Greenbelt's award-winning Artful Afternoon includes a studio open house with the Center's artists-in-residence, Greenbelt Museum historic home tours and an opportunity to visit the Museum's current historical exhibit at the Community Center. All activities are open to the public and free, with the exception of a nominal fee for the house tour.

suspended pending new evidence if no good leads turn up and that it is often difficult to obtain the needed evidence to track down a perpetrator.

Michele Maidens reported that a brick was thrown through her window.

She wanted to know why there was apparently no attempt to take fingerprints at the scene.

Lanier replied that it isn't always possible to obtain fingerprints but that it is departmental policy to attempt to do so. Davis noted that fingerprint reports are done by the state, with an average backlog of three years. Another resident, Faiz Mohideen, reported a similar brick-throwing incident.

Officer George Mathews reported that the number one crime in Greenbelt (as well as in the nearby metropolitan area) is vehicle theft. He cautioned against letting one's car warm up unattended and recommended using car theft prevention devices, which are available at a discount through the city. He also recommended resuming the Neighborhood Watch program in Springhill Lake.

One resident reported that the Giant will provide someone to escort shoppers to their cars on request and that their security camera is capable of imaging cars in the parking lot for those with concerns about their safety after dark. Mathews noted that residents can also call the Greenbelt police for an escort to or from their car if they feel unsafe.

Hines-Rodriguez reported she had been successful in dispersing a group of people loitering and smoking near her residence by approaching them and politely asking them to move elsewhere. She observed that often such problems can be resolved in this way by residents, and that police are there as a back-up when such approaches don't work or aren't feasible.

Police Chief James Craze thanked the organizers and attendees for the meeting and commented that he was a longtime resident of Springhill Lake, whose children had grown up in the community. He noted that Officer Jonathan Lowndes, recently nominated by the SHL community for the America's Most Wanted First-Responder Program, is currently the SHL Community Policing Officer and that residents should feel free to contact him with any and all concerns.

Chief Craze noted also that Officer Mathews had been recognized as Community Policing Officer of the Year in 2005 and Maryland D.A.R.E. Officer of the Year 2008.

Craze pointed out that SHL is the largest apartment complex east of the Mississippi River and that, while the largest percentage of calls to the police department originate from SHL, it also contains the largest percentage of the city population. He reiterated that residents are the "eyes and ears" of the police and encouraged prompt reporting of any concerns.

Code Issues

Resident Sarah Stephenson commented that her main concern was visibility, especially at bus stops. She felt that better lighting was needed to provide safety to residents going to and from bus stops after dark and that wooded areas provided cover for possible attackers. Sheila Wooden responded that she didn't want to see any trees taken down but agreed that better lighting was needed, and that despite her repeated calls to SHL management, malfunctioning lights in her building had not been repaired.

Lanier noted that the city is responsible for street lighting but that the SHL management is responsible for lighting in other areas of the complex. He emphasized that any resident feeling immediately threatened should call the police emergency number, 301-474-5454.

Stephenson reported that she was without heat for a month this winter and upon going in person to the SHL maintenance office was told she had to phone in her complaint in order to have it processed. She said that when her heat was finally repaired, she was given the bill for the repair. City Community Development Inspector Thomas Matthews replied that under county law, landlords are required to provide a habitable residence and that functioning heating and electricity are conditions of habitability. He advised residents to call his office, City Code Enforcement, at 301-345-5417 for support with issues such as these.

He noted that other avenues for resolving these and other landlord/tenant issues are through the local courts. Matthews also mentioned that he speaks Spanish and encouraged residents to call his office with any concerns about code enforcement in their community.

Fires

Fire Department Capt. Paul Gomez and Battalion Chief Scott Hoglander discussed the recent fire issues in Springhill Lake. They noted that an arrest has been made in the recent fire on Edmonston Road but, due to the ongoing nature of that case, no further details can be released beyond what has already been made public.

Hoglander noted they were able to apprehend the arsonist because an SHL resident came forward with information. He encouraged this kind of continued involvement from the community.

Gomez emphasized the need for prompt reporting, since delays can result in small, containable fires becoming large and out of control. Something as small as a smoldering cigarette butt could result in a large, catastrophic fire if not reported.

Recreational Opportunities

Joe McNeal, director of recreation, highlighted city-sponsored activities available to residents, such as classes and programs at the Community Center. He encouraged SHL residents to propose others they would like to see.

He announced the upcoming Celebration of Spring to be held on Saturday, April 26 from 2 to 6 p.m., at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. It is free to all city residents and will feature a reggae band, moon bounce, face painting and other attractions.

Food and drink will be available for a nominal fee.

Differing Experiences

In a general discussion, several residents shared differing experiences with city departments and SHL management. Maidens thanked Community Development Inspector Thomas Matthews for a prompt and effective response from his office when she reported a concern.

David Taylor reported that he has had great service from the SHL maintenance office, while both Sarah Stephenson and Besaida Acha reported great frustration in getting any response to their complaints regarding maintenance issues such as malfunctioning lighting and appliances. Resident Denise Gruszczinski recommended that residents obtain a reference number when they report a maintenance issue in order to follow up effectively if necessary.

Principal Sherwood concluded the meeting with a request for each attendee to bring several others to the next meeting and an appeal to "create community within our community."

possibly providing tax increment financing for needed infrastructure for this property."

Expressing serious concerns and reservations about such a project, Davis requested on behalf of Greenbelt City Council that the county executive include the city in any future meetings and discussions relating to the possible location of a soccer stadium at the Greenbelt Metro Station. The mayor also asked for a report on discussions already held on the issue.

The city has not yet received a response from the county executive's office. James Kearney of the county executive's press office told the News Review that he could not locate the letter. He suggested that the MSA be contacted for updated information on the feasibility study.

Gary A. McGuigan, MSA project executive, told this reporter that in December 2007 MSA was asked to perform a study "evaluating the economic and (market) benefits of locating a Major League Soccer stadium in Prince George's County . . . envisioned as a potential new home for the successful DC United franchise."

The study is expected to be completed in August.

WHAT IS DIZZINESS?

- Did you know that, according to the National Institutes of Health, dizziness is the second most common complaint heard in a doctor's office?
- 85% of dizziness, or disequilibrium, can be caused by problems with the inner ear. This can cause changes in the regular function of the ear, which causes the brain to receive inappropriate signals that the head or the environment is moving when it is not.
- Common symptoms of dizziness, disequilibrium or vertigo include sensations of spinning or that the world is moving, uneasiness, motion intolerance, nausea and vomiting, tinnitus or ringing in the ear, changes in vision and hearing loss. The symptoms can onset rapidly and last a few seconds to a few days, depending on the cause of the episode of vertigo.
- So what causes this dizziness? There are multiple causes of dizziness that range from inner ear disorders, central causes in the brain and vascular system, infection or illness, head trauma, aging or medication.
- The inner ear is a complex system of fluid-filled canals and other structures. When the head moves, so does the fluid, and the direction of that movement sends a signal to the brain, informing it about the position of the head, and the direction in which the head is moving. If there is a change in the signal, either too high, too low or not at all, the brain perceives this as a hallucination of movement. Often times this happens in only one ear, so the imbalance in signals creates perceived movement, whereas ideally the signals work together in each ear to give clear information on where the head is and what is moving.
- Many times, an episode of dizziness will be isolated, or last only for a few days. Or, it may be traced back to motion intolerance from childhood. The onset can also be gradual, especially if it is related to aging or ischemia, or lack of blood flow, to the centers of the ear and brain that help with balance. Whether the episode happens once or becomes a lasting problem, there are treatment options. A physical therapist, audiologist, ear, nose and throat doctor or a neurologist are all able to help diagnose the cause of dizziness, and to recommend treatment. Treatments can range from medication to balance therapy or repositioning maneuvers by a physical therapist to help fix the inner ear, or a combination of the above.

- Falls are one of the top two reasons people are placed in assisted living, or break a hip. Many patients, especially the elderly, experience loss of balance, which can be due to vestibular problems, vision loss or changes in the somatosensory system, which gives the brain information on where the body is in space via the muscles and joints. Good balance depends on all three of these mechanisms working well, so if one or more of these systems is weak, balance is compromised. Regular visits to the ophthalmologist and primary care doctor to ensure every system in the body is up to par, along with strength and balance training by a physical therapist, can greatly reduce the risk of falls.
- Laren Rusin, DPT is a physical therapist who specializes in Vestibular Rehabilitation and orthopedics. She works at Physiotherapy Associates in Greenbelt, MD. She can be contacted at 301.474.6505 or at laren.rusin@physiocorp.com.

Hospital Campus Now Smoke-Free

The entire 35-acre campus of Doctors Community Hospital is now smoke-free with a complete ban on smoking anywhere on the premises, indoors or out. Following a trend at other Maryland hospitals where campus-wide smoking bans already exist, people will need to leave the property to smoke. This policy exceeds Maryland's prohibition against smoking.

To launch the initiative, the hospital offered free blood-pressure screenings by staff equipped with tools for quitting, information on nicotine replacement therapy and giveaways that promote a smoke-free lifestyle.

Greenbelter Julie Polanin Promotes Autism Awareness

During April, Autism Awareness Month, Greenbelter Julie Polanin and other concerned residents are planning a revitalization of the Prince George's County Chapter of the Autism Society. The chapter will provide outlets for support and family education.

Also planned is a new center located in central Prince George's County - One World Center for Autism (OWCA). It will be a nonprofit organization that will address a myriad of challenges facing families and individuals living with autism.

The OWCA will provide a multi-disciplinary clinic staffed with primary care and developmental pediatricians. Other disciplines will include speech and language pathology, social skills education, occupational therapy, nutrition, psychiatry, neurology, family counseling and care coordination.

An informational meeting about the OWCA will be held at the Association for Related Children of Prince George's County, 1401 McCormick Drive in Largo on Tuesday, April 15 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. All interested parties are invited to attend.

Autism is a complex developmental disability that typically appears during the first three years of life and is the result of a neurological disorder. It affects the normal functioning of the brain, impacting development in the areas of social interaction and communication skills.

There is no known cure for autism but early intervention helps with many of the core deficits. Autism is a spectrum disorder, meaning there is a range of expression from very severe to relatively mild with many nuances in between.

Greenbelt residents Joe and Julie Polanin have twins with autism. The Polanin twins were progressing typically until 18 months when Elizabeth lost all language and eye contact. William developed language but in an echolalic fashion, only repeating bits of language he heard.

There are many families here in Greenbelt who have family members on the autism spectrum.

For more information on autism visit www.autism-society.org or www.autismspeaks.org.

In Memoriam – Michael Sucher: Local Talent, International Recognition

The following tribute to Michael Sucher, who grew up in Greenbelt and died on March 8 at his home in Montpelier, Vt., appeared in The Montpelier Bridge on March 20, 2008. Written by Michelle Singer, editor, the excerpts below are reprinted with permission.

The son of Dorothy and Joseph Sucher, formerly of Lakeside Drive, Michael was 49. His obituary appeared in the March 20 issue of the News Review.

Michael was a founding member of the legendary D.C. progressive jazz group Rush Hour and appeared and recorded with many Washington area musicians including the late great guitarist Danny Gatton, blues guitarist Tom Principato, and later with Grammy-nominated multi-instrumentalist Tim Eyerhmann’s East Coast Offering.

In 1995 he married Carol Hausner. Michael and Carol moved to Fairlee, Vt. in 1996 and later to Montpelier. Their daughter, Rachel, was born in 1999. Rachel says of her father, “He is the best joker, musician and dad that there was, that there is, and that there ever will be.” Carol adds that Michael lives on in his music. “You can sense him through his recordings, and that will continue on. People will carry memories of him as a teacher, the way he sent his students out into the world excited about music. He was an amazing dad, and musician, his gifts have rippled out to many people and places.”

After moving to Vermont, Michael worked with the Sandra Wright Band, with whom he co-produced the CD “After Hours,” featuring saxophonist Big Joe Burrell. “He was a very talented young man, very talented,” says Wright. “He had a great gift of knowing what to play and how to play it, how to express it. It made you feel very comfortable if you’re a singer. He loved music. We used to always have fun, always laughing. He’s a sweetheart. It’s a loss to the world, and to his family and friends.”

In 2001, he released a CD of solo piano improvisations, “Fingerpaintings,” which received critical praise. Sucher’s website, www.michaelsucher.com, includes this review from William Funsch of Big Heavy World, “The composing and recording of the album were simultaneous, documenting Sucher’s craft as it is born, a stunning achievement of spontaneity and spirit.” “Fingerpaintings” and “After Hours” are available in downtown Montpelier at Buch Spieler.

In the summer of 2004, Michael toured Europe with two-time Grammy-nominated soul and blues artist Mighty Sam McClain and was part of his band. McClain says he only knew Michael for a short time, but “He was a sweet, sweet, sweet spirit. The last time he played with the band, I had the hardest time saying goodbye to him. I couldn’t stop crying. This was in the middle of the set! I just couldn’t stop, it was painful for me to have him leave. He was a wonderful human, it’s a great loss to everybody and I give my condolences to his family and friends. It was a privilege to have him pass through my life, he made my life and my music brighter. God Bless Michael Sucher.”

Sucher worked with many musicians, including Mike Bernal, Allison Mann, John McGale, Ellen Powell, and Diana Winn. Bernal says, “I don’t think Michael ever played a wrong note and if he did he played it really well. The support that he gave to the band was always fantastic. He was the guy who reminded you that the small things were just that, small things. Musically speaking, he was one of the finest players I’ve ever had the pleasure of working with. Personally speaking, he was a great great man, he cared a lot about the people he played with.”

Diana Winn, of Rebop Records, says, “He was a combination of being one of the most competent, technically talented, musicians around and expressive – he put his soul into it. He was able to work with other people, he was a good teacher but also a good listener – he brought people out. He was versatile, playing all kinds of styles and a composer. Just an amazing person and musician, a gentle soul, easy to be around and work with. We all want to keep a part of him close to us. I still have two or three songs we were working on together. I feel so lucky to have those kernels. When I continue to work with them, he will be there.”

Michael Sucher

Dave Keller, another musician says of Sucher, “Mike had both a complete mastery of the piano, and an amazing ability to play directly from his heart. Some people have one or the other, but it’s so rare to see both. For example, he could play songs perfectly after only hearing them once. I’m talking about obscure soul tunes with weird little riffs and difficult chord voicings. To be able to do that is incredible enough, but when it came time for a solo, he would lean back, head facing the ceiling, close his eyes and just completely rip it up. Right from the heart. You’d be watching him right there in front of you, but you knew he was somewhere else altogether. Everyone I know thought Mike was, first of all, just a wonderful, sweet guy, but also a real genius on the keys. I’m going to really miss him.”

Moving Historical Library To Greenbelt – A Big Job

by Virginia Beauchamp

At the time of Fred S. DeMarr’s sudden death in 1997, the library of the Prince George’s County Historical Society, located in the basement of Marietta Mansion, was being redecorated.

As a result, bookcases had been pushed to the center of the room and boxes of papers and books collected by DeMarr were stacked high to await future sorting. DeMarr’s unexpected death coupled with the redecoration resulted in a crisis for the library.

A few Historical Society members had worked closely with DeMarr but the library contents were DeMarr’s. He had been an inveterate collector and accumulator – as it were, the soul of the library. His rich knowledge of Prince George’s County history and its residents had been indispensable for the researchers who made use of it.

Although no one could duplicate DeMarr’s depth of knowledge of county history, the library collection itself was an important resource for research on the people, places and events within that history and, following his death, Society members felt it was crucial to keep the library and its contents available to the public at large.

Within a few weeks after his death, Society members Sharon Sweeting and Sarah Bourne decided they would try to open the library for public use on Saturday afternoons as had been the practice under DeMarr. Sweeting was a librarian with the Internal Revenue Service. Bourne had been the society’s secretary for 11 years, beginning in the early 1970s and had often helped DeMarr with the library.

Third Partner

Society member Susan Pearl also agreed to help. Their idea was that each in turn would open and operate the library on successive Saturdays.

According to Bourne, “That plan lasted about a week!” There was simply too much to do.

Sweeting’s husband Lester, who had been serving as editor of the Society’s newsletter, located more bookcases to accommodate the growing collection of volumes and the volunteers “sort of” arranged the books onto the shelves, in the words of Bourne.

She began, she said, with the boxes of news clippings DeMarr had been accumulating. Many contained whole newspapers, with notes on top in his handwriting to check certain pages. “I carried a box home every Saturday,” she said, “and spent many hours at home trying to divine what he wanted from each one.”

She and her husband laughed a lot, she said, “and I swore that Fred was sitting on the eaves right outside our den window, telling me what to save.” In addition, Bourne said she read through current county papers, trying to keep up with weekly events.

On Saturdays at the library, Sharon Sweeting worked on organizing and cataloging the books – especially during a three-year period when her husband was serving overseas. Between assignments in 2000 and 2001 he served as Historical Society president. (Sadly, Lester Sweeting died last month in an automobile accident in upstate New York.)

Research Help

During the same period Pearl, a professional historian with the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC), helped visitors seeking research assistance. She had worked occasionally with DeMarr, giving him information and materials on historical places she was researching. “We often traded inquiries,” she said.

After DeMarr’s death, Pearl began coming to the library almost every Saturday. Initially she helped organize the books and papers but gradually she began to concentrate on searching out answers and responding to the many inquiries that came in concerning county history.

Among the boxes they were sorting, Pearl found “quite a few written inquiries” with no indication whether or not DeMarr had responded to them. “Some of them were years old,” she said. “I got some pretty amusing thank yous from people who had given up on inquiries that were more than five years old.”

In December 1997 Pearl was elected Society Historian, a post she still holds. In 2004 she retired after 26 years with M-NCPPC but continued to work there part-time for three more years. She continues as a volunteer with the Historical Society, responding to phone, letter and email inquiries. She works almost every Saturday and at least one more day every week.

New Recruit

Around July 1999, another volunteer joined the crew at Marietta. This was Diane Stultz, a native Prince Georgian who serves as publications chair for the Prince George’s County Genealogical Society and a regular volunteer with its library in Bowie.

At the Historical Society, following the 2005 departure of the Sweetings for a new home in upstate New York, Stultz took over Sharon Sweeting’s job of cataloging the contents of the library. Indeed, Stultz insisted that the process be complete before the move to Greenbelt. She felt that books should be at least spine-labeled and in order on the shelves.

As of early March, over 5,500 books and other materials have been labeled. To speed the process, Stultz works at home, searching Library of Congress (LOC) websites for LOC numbers, typing and running the spine labels during mid-week and then labeling the books at the library on Thursdays and Saturdays.

Other volunteers, such as “Dusty” Rhodes, Pearl and Bourne, have been recording and filing each of the labeled items and entering them into the computer system. Since the library closed in late January to prepare for the move to Greenbelt, these volunteers have been working four to five days a week, cataloging, filing, scanning, packing and now unpacking and shelving the thousands of books and papers of this invaluable collection.

Opening Soon

When all the cataloging and shelving work is complete, the Fred S. DeMarr Library of the Prince George’s County Historical Society will open again for use by the public. And on May 31 its grand opening will be held at the Greenbelt Library.

Circus Camp Produces New Skills, Lots of Laughs

Congressional Art Contest for Students

Congressman Steny H. Hoyer is encouraging high school students who live in Maryland's 5th Congressional District including Greenbelt to participate in the 27th Annual Congressional Arts Competition for a chance to have their artwork displayed in the U.S. Capitol for a year. Through the competition Members of Congress showcase the artistic talent of high school students in their districts. The winner for each district earns a display space in the main corridor connecting the House of Representatives office buildings with the U.S. Capitol – a walkway through which millions of visitors pass each year. To participate, students must first call Hoyer's Waldorf District Office at 301-843-1577 to obtain a privacy release form and a full list of competition guidelines. Letters were sent to all high schools in the 5th District announcing the competition and outlining the rules for artwork submission. All artwork must be delivered to Hoyer's office in Waldorf or Greenbelt by 5 p.m. on Friday, May 2. The Greenbelt address is: U.S. District Courthouse, 6500 Cherrywood Lane, Suite 310, Greenbelt, MD 20770. A panel of members of the 5th District arts community including art teachers and professional artists will review the artwork and select one piece to represent the 5th District in the U.S. Capitol, where it will hang for one year. All other entries will be displayed in Hoyer's Waldorf District Office. The judging is scheduled to take place during the week of May 5. The winner will be invited to attend a ribbon cutting ceremony in Washington, D.C. in June.
